Lightweight. Durable. Built for Performance.

ZO Next Generation Trombones

The ZO Next Generation Trombone is a modern, lightweight performance instrument engineered for today's musicians who need durability, comfort, and dependable playability without sacrificing tone. Built with ZO's advanced high-strength ABS polymer construction and precision metal components, the Next Generation series delivers a warm, focused sound with excellent slide response while weighing significantly less than a traditional brass trombone. The result is an instrument that is easier to carry, easier to play for extended periods, and remarkably resistant to dents, corrosion, and the everyday wear that school and marching enviornments demand.

Whether in the concert hall, classroom, or on the marching field, the ZO Next Generation Trombone offers smooth performance thanks to its precision-engineered fiberglass slide and responsive design. Available in a variety of vibrant matte finishes, it combines eye-catching style with professional reliability, making it an instrument students enjoy playing while providing educators with an exceptionally durable investment. The series is offered in both standard Bb Trombone and Bb/F Trigger Trombone models to meet the needs of developing and advancing players.
